DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 18, 20-21 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Duysens et al. USPN 6,360,130. Duysens et al teach a tunneling member 120 that may be slidably (column 13 lines 30-50) attached to lead member 70. The examiner considers the stepped portion 140 a means for minimizing tunneling forces. The connectors 160, 150 could potentially be used for electrodes.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-5, 8-15, 17-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Fogarty et al USPN 5,690,648 (alone or in view of Thomson et al. USPN 6,183,485).

Claims are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by. Fogarty shows a forceps device having a rod portion 26 (or between 26 and the finger holes) for with a distal end for grasping a tail of an electrode for pulling it through outer tube 20 (column 6 lines 31-41). While teaching an insertion method it is apparent that the electrode be removed by grasping the electrode with the forceps already inserted in the tube and pulling back so as to pull the electrode through the tube. Flexible and rigid are relative terms and the trocar tube 20 can be considered either depending upon what it is compared too. Thomason shows an alternative forcep construction with rod member 36 and holding members 24 and 26 in detachable adjoinment to the rod and tube 30.

Claims 6, 16 and 25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fogarty et al USPN 5,690,648 (alone or in view of Thomson et al. USPN 6,183,485) and further in view of Fleischhacker USPN 4,596,559. Applicant differs from Fogarty in providing a peelable introducer tube. Using a peelable introducer tub to aid in inserting instruments in the body would have been obvious in view of the teachings of Fleischhacker.

Claims 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fogarty et al USPN 5,690,648 (alone or in view of Thomson et al. USPN 6,183,485) in further view of Hermann et al USPN 5,843,031. To have provide a lubricious coating on the introducer lumen of Fogarty to aid in the insertion of instruments would have been a conventional alteration.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 10-14-2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. As noted above, the examiner considers forceps to include a rod member with a holding end.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
